FESS TO GIVE NOTIFICATION SPEECH

Invasion of Farmers Expected, but This Time To Cheer Party; Program Will Last Hour, Beginning at 6 O'clock Marion Time

TOPEKA, Kan., Aug. 18—Today is the big day for Topeka—and incidentally for the remainder of the United States which may be interested in the ceremonies attendant

Not since the historic flood of 1903 has there been so much excitement in town. For in the shank of the evening when the big green copper dome of the statehouse throws its sprawling shadow across the great relief expanse of yard beneath and athwart the huge temporary speakers' stand erected below, the largest gathering in Kansas history will look on while ally notified by the Republican party that he has been chosen to run on their ticket for the office of vice president.

K. D. Flora, the state meteorologist, who is undoubtedly one of the best (but ated among the citizens of his state over the first nominee of major political party Kansas has produced, has been considerate enough to forecast ideal weather for the big dings. Fair and here tonight. Time given is Eastern standard.

6 p. m. —Introduction of Dr. J. R. McFadden, pastor of the St. A. Methodist Episcopal church.

The latter part of the prediction is particularly promising for those who have experienced the sweltering heat-blast of summer in the Tropics.

But rain or shine Senator Curtis will be notified on the south steps of the state-house at 6 o'clock, Monday time. This is the final decision of the City committees who have taken into consideration the radio audience of twenty million who will listen in through the vicarious ears of the loud speakers which will be placed in the audience of 30,000 which will throng over the spacious grass grandstand of the statehouse yard.

That threatened invasion of Kansas City by the farmer during the Republic

Hean national convention which failed to materialize, promised to sweep in upon Tokyo today. But it was far from the widely advertised "Invaders" invasion. Streams of gleaming new stake Topeka was also host to numerous notable callers from more distant points. Senator Hiram D. Foss, who is to deliver the notification speech, was on hand, having ordered a special train to take him to the city.

The agricultural gentlemen were likewise prepared to fly in upon Topeka. A squadron of 15 planes was expected early today. Extra railroad coaches, carrying distinguished passengers from all parts of the country,

STATE REALTY LAW IS BEING ENFORCED

Two Brokers Arrested for Selling
Without License; Other Cases Pending

Two real estate brokers have been arrested within the last month for selling real estate without a license, according to G. F. Ackerman, secretary of the state board of real estate examiners, J. W. Jacoby, Marion attorney, is chairman of the board. Both brokers pleaded guilty to the charges and were fined. Several other cases are under investigation and a number of convictions are expected in the near future. The board of examiners expects to take a more active stand on the prosecution of real estate license law violators in the future, Mr. Ackerman stated.

Real estate operators and the public have had ample time to become acquainted with the law and failure to secure a license can only be interpreted to be a willful violation of the law and not an oversight, he pointed out.

Prepare Questionnaire
A joint committee of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards and the board of examiners has worked out and approved a blank form which will be used in making a check on all brokerage firms in the state to ascertain whether they are complying with the law in all respects. There will be a number of questions on the blank. The attention of Ohio brokers is called in advance to three of the points of the check-up—namely: Are the words "real estate broker" or "licensed real estate broker" prominently displayed on the exterior of the office or on the premises? Is the broker's license prominently displayed in his office? Are the licenses of all salesmen prominently displayed? If all brokers will give attention to these details in advance it will probably save them some trouble in the future, Mr. Ackerman said.

General Cooperation
The Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards, the investigators of the state department, and private individuals will all co-operate in this check-up. All work will be done by volunteers and no money has been appropriated to cover the survey. It being carried out by individuals and organizations interested in seeing the license law function efficiently.

Both real estate brokers and the general public are urged to report any cases where a man or woman is selling real estate for a commission without being licensed by the state and complying with the law. All private reports will be treated confidentially and should be sent to the state board of real estate examiners, Rowland building, Columbus.

IRON AGE REPORTS AUGUST TRADE GOOD

New York, Aug. 18.—Iron Age says mid-August finds business holding up to the surprising volume of the past several weeks, without, however, signs of increases in the immediate future. The one exception is that the steel requirements for pipe for the oil industry are mounting rapidly. The price trend is toward higher levels. Iron Age composite prices remain unchanged, finished steel at 2.34¢ a pound for the second week and pig iron at $17.04 a gross ton for the fourth week.

SLUMP SHOWN IN VEGETABLE SALES

Hot Weather Blamed for Decline Which Worries Dealers Here This Week

A slump in vegetable sale largely due to the hot weather gave local produce dealers considerable worry in finding a way to avoid a loss in perishable articles on the Marion market during the last week.

The sale of a majority of vegetables was slow and at various times dealers lowered prices in order to clear the stands. In spite of the drop of other vegetables, lettuce, green beans and cucumbers sold steadily. Imported peas, appearing on the market Wednesday, sold readily at 25 cents a pound, a quotation more than double the price asked when the home-grown variety appeared several weeks ago.

While the vegetable sale was on the decline, fruits sold rapidly at all stands. Peaches seemed to be the most popular of the fruit articles and large sales were reported, in spite of an exceedingly high price asked.

Due to a controversy between dealers and growers, blackberries appeared only rarely. Dealers were unwilling to pay more than 10 cents a quart for the berries while growers maintained they were unable to pick the berries for less than 15 cents. A few quarts of berries purchased from a Columbus wholesale house were selling at 20 cents a quart Thursday and Friday.

Plums were among the home-grown articles arriving on the local markets this week. They were selling at a price of 10 cents a pound. Only a limited supply of the plums appeared on the local produce stands, however. There was but little change in a majority of the prices on the produce markets during the week. Oranges advanced to 85 cents a dozen and peaches to $2.50 a bushel.

Give cheerfully with one hand and you will gather abundantly with two.

Women wish for long life minus old age.

BUSINESS EXPANDS IN NEW QUARTERS

Lawrence Auto Supply Co.
Adds to Merchandise, Increases Sales Force

Since occupying its new quarters in the Y. M. C. A. building, where its floor space is about tripled, the Lawrence Auto Supply Co. has added several new lines of merchandise and an additional man to the sales force.

The new man is W. J. "Bill" Whitbeck, who for over 20 years was connected with the P. D. Bents Supply store, resigning when Mr. Bents sold his business to C. C. Brown in January. Whitbeck then became a partner in the Roseman Tire & Supply Co., a firm which purchased the business of the Hayden Tire & Supply Co. He recently sold his interest to his partners to accept the position with the Lawrence Co.

Among the new lines of merchandise handled by the Lawrence Auto Supply Co. is the Absopure line of electric refrigerators, which include both household and commercial machines. The General Necessities Corporation, of Detroit which manufactures these machines, has the distinction of bringing out the first electric refrigerator for household use to sell at a price under $200.

The Zenith line of radios has also been added and offers a wide range of prices and cabinet styles.

A complete line of flood tires and tubes has also been added. This line was handled by the Lawrence Co. several years ago but because of lack of space was discontinued. The size of the company's new quarters enables it to again stock the complete line.

CLEARINGS OF WEEK LISTED AT $581,688

Bank Transactions Here Reach
High Total in Season
Usually Dull

With the totals for two days topping the $100,000 mark and one day reaching above the record height of $150,000, bank clearings here for the last week amounted to a sum of $581,688.90, according to figures given out at the Marion National bank.

The highest figure for the week was reached last Saturday when the bank reported a total of $153,242.50 for the day's business. On Monday the clearings amounted to $134,301.90.

Although bankers believe the total for the week an indication of fairly normal business at this time of the year, the clearings were about $18,000

PRODUCT IDEAL FOR HIGH-CLASS WORK

Upper Sandusky Plant Turns
Out Brick of Distinctive Design

NOT STEREOTYPED

Is Especially Effective in Giving
Proper Tone to Period
Architecture

Definite period architecture must prevail in the apartment house today. Gone are the dreary "flats" or tenements, row on row, alike as two peas in a pod. The house individual is the keynote and influenced by the general revision to earlier architecture, Old English and early American seem most to find favor.

An architect will tell you that "fitness in architecture is that indefinable something which indicates or emphasizes the purpose for which the structure is intended."

The Tudor apartments, in Columbus, O., are English from their quaint front stoops to their chimney pots. When the architect, Harry T. Roderick, planned their detail, his first thought was the medium through which the English note could best be expressed.

Essential Features
A sturdy, durable brick was the primary consideration. But sturdiness alone was not enough. The house must not have that new look that is the incongruity in many a modern "Old English" structure.

The original English brick was a solid unit of hard burned clay, bright with nature's own colors. It had none of the garish colorings that are so patently artificial.

Mr. Roderick found his combination in the Wyandot sand-molded brick. Its velvet texture gave just the right softness and age-old mellowness to his wall and the fluted interior guaranteed suggestions.

Wyandot Sarouks were used in the Tudor. This brick comes in rose-pink, bronze and lavender-blue and the ensemble is a warm rosy-brown wall.

The Wyandot Clay Products Co., at Upper Sandusky, O., especially recommends the Sarouk for early English architecture. For colonial and Georgian they make the Old Colony brick in red, brown and gunmetal.

In General Use

Wyandot brick is now being specified all over the United States for distinctive residence and commercial work, by the outstanding architects. It is chosen for its utter lack of mechanical exactness. It has a slightly undulating surface that gives character to the wall. It is not a stereotyped brick.

During the present summer season, the company has been forced to refuse orders for over a million bricks—this in spite of the fact that the capacity of the factory has been doubled during the last six months. Branch agencies operate from Canada to Texas and from Arizona to New York.

FIRE UNDERWRITERS PLANNING CAMPAIGN

Believing that the public would be interested in, and benefited by a more complete understanding of the stock fire insurance industry, the National Board of Fire Underwriters, through its committee on public relations, is planning an educational program in daily newspapers. The advertising for the first year will be confined to Ohio, Missouri, Pennsylvania and Virginia. In ever daily paper in those states, Gale & Pletsch, New York and Chicago, were selected as advertising agents.

lower than the aggregated total for the preceding week.

The lowest figure for the week was reported Wednesday at $48,918.29. Tuesday the total was reported at $76,749.13 and Thursday the figures amounted to $80,000.00. An amount of $72,718.54 was noted last Friday, the first day of the six-day period.

Bankers are optimistic over the extent of the business in spite of the continued hot weather. August, according to bankers, is generally considered a dull season in practically all lines of business.

MARION GETS NEW BOWLING PLANT

ASHLAND MAN WILL OPEN EIGHT ALLEYS EARLY IN SEPTEMBER

New Equipment To Be Used To Furnish New Recreation Center

WILL COST $20,000

Work To Start Next Week To Remove Maple from Y. M. C. A.

A NEW bowling plant replacing the alleys at the Y. M. C. A. will be opened in Marion about the middle of September at 120 South Prospect st. It was announced today by H. V. Keen of Ashland.

Eight new alleys will be installed in the building known as the Prospect garage. Alleys are expected to arrive sometime next week. Work on remodeling the structure has already started and the project will cost $20,000.

Mr. Keen, who will operate the new recreation center, owns bowling alleys at Ashland, having nine on one floor of a building there. He is planning to add two more this winter.

The new alleys here will be laid on the ground floor with room for adding as many more in case the sport demands it. A new ventilation system will be installed changing the air inside the building six times every hour.

The new equipment will be of the latest type with automatic spotters. The rear of the building will be used for the heating and ventilating equipment.

The entire structure will be remodeled and reconstructed. Front rooms, it was stated, will be rented.

The alleys at the Y. M. C. A. will be removed next week having been bought by Mr. Keen. These were traded in on the new equipment.

FOUR EAGLE HITTERS ABOVE 300 AVERAGE; PLAY AKRON SUNDAY

Three Members of Team Able To Show Increase After Toledo Fray

SHARROCK LEADING

Collins-Alexander Hurlers Expected To Aid in Slicing Down Percentages

HITTING seems to be the easiest thing for the Eagles, Marion's greatest collection of slugging stick wielders in many years, and today's course of the batting of the locals shows that four of the seven leaders are above the .300 mark. Another just lacks .002 to get in the same class.

A slight whisper is floating around today that a few of the batting averages are due for a drop Sunday afternoon when the battery of Collins-Alexander hurlers get through flinging their curves at Lincoln Park.

Presenting a well-balanced team that is bidding strong for the championship of Akron, the Collins-Alexander hurlers are said to be one of the outstanding aggregations playing in Marion this season. Errors are so exceptional in the field that it is a tough break for any player making a miscue. It just isn't being done. The pitching force is far above the par of the usual run of road teams.

In spite of the fact that four members of the team are over the .300 mark, only three were able to show an increase in last week's game with the Paige Dairys of Toledo.

Joe Conroy and Rizer were banded the greatest fall. Neither hit safely in this contest while Conroy has gone without a hit for two whole games. Sharrock's average has fallen a little but he is still leading the team at the rate of .387. Price's average also slumped a little.

The hitting of Fine and Rowan featured last Sunday's game and as a result no member of the Eagle aggregation is hitting below .220. However, the leadoff man has been content with only a few hits all season, broke the rule Sunday by driving out four nukes. Fine moved up to .258 and nudged Price for fifth place in the standings.

Manager Francis Bacon also picked up a few percentage points. He is now hitting the ball for an average of .322.

The leading hitters are:

Player	G.	A.	H.	R.	Pct.
Sharrock	14	52	11	20	.307
Rizer	9	31	5	10	.320
Conroy	12	43	5	14	.320
Bacon	15	53	15	17	.321
Price	15	50	13	17	.305
Rowan	15	58	7	13	.224

EAST-WEST TOURNEY IS STOPPED BY RAIN

At Tennis Matches To Be Run Off Today; Changes Are Made

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Having been unable to establish the veracity of a report that "Big Bill" Tilden had conspired with the weather man to provide the delay which washed out the proposed first day's play of the annual East-West championship lawn tennis matches at the Forest Hills stadium of the West Side tennis club yesterday, the officers of the Eastern Lawn Tennis Association decided last night to compress the two days of play into the space between 1 o'clock this afternoon and sundown this evening.

The plan adopted a considerably revised schedule of play of which the chief feature is the elimination of Fritz Mercur, of Bethlehem, Pa., from the singles, thus doing away with the match in which the conqueror of Tilden and George M. Lott, also of the Davis cup team, was to have met Neal Brown of California. Mercur will continue to hold a leading place in the afternoon's program, however, for he has been selected to be the opponent of Helen Wills, national, international, and Wimbledon women's champion, in a special exhibition singles match.

STRIBLING MATCHED

Will Meet Johnny Squires at Madison Square Sept. 6

New York, Aug. 18.—Interest in the current heavyweight elimination tournament picked up today with the scheduling of a 10-round bout between W. L. (Young) Stribling, of Macon, Ga., and Johnny Squires, highly-touted heavyweight champion of South America, and surrounding islands. The leather pushers will clash on Sept. 6 at the reopening of Tex Rickard's fistic emporium at Madison Square Garden.

Stribling was one of the first to claim Gene Tunney's discarded title. The Georgia peach claims to have knocked out 101 opponents. Squires dropped a decision to Johnny Risko in Detroit recently.

NATIONAL POLO TOURNEY TO OPEN TODAY IN WEST

Cleveland, Aug. 18.—Everything was in readiness today for the opening of the national interclub polo tournament this afternoon. The first match will be played at Circle W. Farm, Gates Mill, between two hard-hitting service teams, the cavalry school four from Ft. Riley, Kan., champions of the Rocky Mountain circuit; and the sixth field artillery team, of Ft. Hoyle, Md., champions of the southeastern circuit.

The matches will be played both at the Circle W. Farm and the Kirtland country club, Sunday afternoon, at Kirtland, the Chagrin Valley team, present holders of the national interclub championship, will meet the Ft. Bliss, Tex. team which held the title last year.

Babe Ruth and Farrell to Tour Country's Golf Links After World Series Games

If All Goes Well, There Will Be No Barnstorming Trip for Bambino This Season; King of Home Runs Not So Bad as Golfer

BY DAVID J. WALSH
NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—It is quietly thought that we have been deceived about a matter like this all these years but the writer has come into possession of evidence today strongly indicating that reports of Bambino's death must have been grossly exaggerated.

Babe Ruth, greatest of all players, and Johnny Farrell, greatest of professional golfers, are planning to go on a tour of the country's links immediately after the world series. Yes, Father-stonehenge; the great man actually has let his commercial side get the better of him. It was a struggle, no doubt, his better and finer instincts counseled otherwise and his nights were sleepless and his days a haggard reproach to the scriptures that once he had held so dear. But all to no purpose. Human frailty triumphed again. In the end he capitulated. Mr. Ruth, the golfer, decided to turn professional.

Looking Over Land
His men of business now is putting out feelers to see what he can do about looking the dual attraction back and forth across the country this fall and early winter. If all goes well, there will be no barnstorming trip for Ruth, the ball player, for the first time in eight years. Ruth, the golfer, will be too busy counting the sap money, which is the easiest to get and the hardest to count.

The ceremony should take an unconscionable bit of the gentleman's time on this proposition, for they really seem to have something this time—Farrell, the open champion, to draw the golf fans and Ruth to muster the baseball addicts. To make it look good.

McWeney of Brooklyn, a 1 to 0 victory over Blake of the Cubs.

Old Ep Rixey held Boston to three hits and pitched Cincinnati to a neat 2 to 1 win over Greenfield, all three runs being scored in the ninth.

Jack Russell of the Red Sox took a 4 to 3 duel from Lyons of the White Sox by driving in the winning run in the eleventh.

A triple by Muddy Ruel in the eighth broke up the Washington-Detroit game, the Nats winning a 3 to 1 verdict. The Senators took sixth place away from the Tigers.

Other teams did not play.

Giants Can Take Lead by Winning Next Two Games

New York, Aug. 18.—By beating the Cardinals in St. Louis today and tomorrow, the Giants can take the lead in the National League race. The standing of the clubs then would be:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
New York	68	43	.613
St. Louis	70	40	.633

The fly in this ointment is that two New York southpaws are due to work against the Cards in the remaining games of the series, and southpaws are "the fondest things they is of."

But precedent counts for little in this series. Yesterday the Giants vanquished Clarence Mitchell, their ancient jinx, 3 to 2, for the first time since he joined the St. Louis club two months ago.

Larry Benton, New York mound ace, relieved the tiring Fitzsimmons and saved the game by retiring five successive batters. A wild throw by Andy High was converted into a New York tally by fast broken-field running on the part of Andy Reese, former Vanderbilt football star.

The Giants now have won nine out of 16 games from St. Louis this season.

The fast-climbing Pirates scuttled the Phillies, twice, 10 to 3, and 9 to 1, walloping 30 hits. Traynor got seven bingles and P. Wauer six.

High class twirling featured the other games. Hits by Flowers and Iressler in the ninth gave Buzz

18 DRIVERS ENTERED IN AUTOMOBILE RACE

200-Mile Speed Event To Get Under Way at Altoona Today

Speedway, Altoona, Pa., Aug. 18.—The roar of racing autos today lured thousands of thrill seekers to the huge wooden bowl here where 18 of the world's most renowned drivers are to compete in the 200-mile international speed event scheduled this afternoon.

Hours before the feature race was scheduled to begin the highways leading to the speedway were lined with traffic, and threatening rain clouds over the western section of the state failed to check the steady flow of race fans enroute to the spectacle.

INTEREST INCREASING

New York, Aug. 18.—That the public is intensely interested in the forthcoming polo matches between the South American and United States fours for the championship of the Americas, is indicated by the huge advance sale recorded by the United States Polo Association. With the matches still three weeks away, the sales for the affair have already mounted over $100,000, and may run much higher before the first match.

Hoover Advisors Urge Him to Give Three Speeches in West as He Goes to Vote

Republican Nominee Visits Grand Canyon on His Trip East; Fear Eastern Leaders Will Protest His Closing Campaign in Western Part of Country

Parade With Hoover to Williams, Aug. 18—Definitely committed in favor of the Boulder Dam project, Herbert Hoover diverted from his trip to Washington today to visit the Grand Canyon of the Colorado in Arizona.

The Republican nominee left California behind certain to return again before election day in order to cast his vote at home.

Under the circumstances, Hoover will make his campaign on the west coast. His advisors today were considering a program of three major speeches in the last week of the campaign. One would be made in Chicago as Hoover went westward to his Palo Alto home. The second would be made at Kansas City and the third, closing the campaign, would be made over the radio from San Francisco or from his Palo Alto home on the night before the election.

Hoover, however, will have to be quick over this plan as he is a reluctant campaigner. He personally expressed the wish to make but four speeches after his Iowa farm address last Tuesday and it is his personal plan to make only as many speeches as are necessary to explain the Republican campaign before he goes to the west.

Waldo High School Boys to Make Tour

Will Visit Farms Where Vocational Projects Are in Operation

The vocational agriculture boys of the Waldo high school will conduct their first annual project tour, starting from the high school building at 9 o'clock, Tuesday morning.

The tour will be made up of visits to the various farms of the community on which vocational projects and club enterprises are in operation, and will also include enterprises of interest which are a direct result of the activities of the vocational agriculture department.

In hog projects about 40 hogs will be seen, including one exceptionally fine ton-litter and a good young pure bred. Other live stock projects include five beef steers, five dairy heifers, 20 ewes and lambs, and several hundred chickens. All of the above mentioned live stock is pure bred and much of it registered.

Crop projects include five one-acre potato projects, one ten-acre one-hundred bushel corn club project, and two four-acre corn projects. All of these projects are grown from certified seed.

The boys and their teacher, L. P. Eddler, are particularly anxious to have the fathers of all the boys who are now in the department and those who expect to come in this year, accompany them on this tour. A cordial invitation also is extended to any other persons of the community, who may be interested in the agriculture of the community, to spend the day with them.

It is the plan of the boys to carry their lunch and eat in the country at some suitable grove.

ADD HOURS to your Summer Playtime

POSITIVE AGITATION

What a difference you can make in your summer cleaning! No more hot, tiring sweeping and dusting. No more days wholly spent in battling summer's dust. With The Hoover to aid you, your cleaning tasks can be shortened by hours—and your efforts lightened amazingly.

For The Hoover cleans faster—cleans more easily—cleans more thoroughly. Repeated tests demonstrate unmistakably this super-efficiency. Under actual home conditions The Hoover removes more dirt per minute than other cleaners.

Its ability to remove the most dirt per minute is due to its remarkable cleaning principle—exclusive with products of The Hoover Company—"Positive Agitation." It adds to sweeping, which removes the lint and thread, and suction, which gathers up the surface dust, a deep-beating which flutters out the heavy low-clinging grit which other methods fail to reach. In addition it lifts and straightens the rug nap and restores the brightness of the rug colors.

Why not have a demonstration in your home of The Hoover's ability to remove more dirt per minute? Because d.p.m. represents the real gauge of electric cleaning capacity, you should have this test before buying any electric cleaner. Telephone us today.

"Elmer Gantry" Not Good Play But Likely to Profit From Publicity It'll Get

Writer Describes Ludicrous Appeal of White-Robed Women Parading Street and Exhorting Attendance at Play; Likens Group to Seasoned Burlesque Troupe

BY RUTH MORRIS

Star Staff Correspondent

New York, Aug. 18.—After several postponements, due to disagreements between author and producer, Broadway finally flopped to the Playhouse to view the highly exploited stage version of Sinclair Lewis' novel, "Elmer Gantry."

The opus, by Patrick Kearney, is parenthetically described as "Three Episodes From the Life of a Modern Crusader" and deals with the secret immoralities of that arch-enemy of vice, so eloquently described by Mr. Lewis.

During the first act Gantry, a young clergyman whose sermons (stolen from Ingersoll) have created a sensation in the little town of Schoenheims, Kansas, betrays Lulu Bains, the daughter of the deacon in whose house he is living. Trapped into a promise of marriage, he uses all his wits—between surreptitious swigs of whiskey—to figure a way out of the entanglement. He succeeds, but is forced to resign his pulpit and becomes a traveling salesman.

The second act, which the producers probably thought would elevate the play to the ranks of the sensational, is highly unconvincing.

What a Sight!

Those of the audience who were inclined to rock the lobby between first and second acts were surprised to see a troupe of white-robed women parading up the street and pause before the doors of the theater to sing hymns, while passersby were exhorted to attend Sharon Falconer's revival within. The effect was ludicrous. The white-robed dispensers of salvation closely resembled a seasoned burlesque troupe and the preacher gave a splendid imitation of a circus ballyhoo.

Sharon Falconer, in the person of Adele Klier, was even less convincing. Nevertheless, she succeeded in convincing the susceptible Elmer. And how! They form a partnership—for business purposes and otherwise—and just as Elmer is beginning to tire of the relationship, he is released by her death in a fire which he has inadvertently caused.

Elmer's troubles continue in the third act when he falls into the hands of blackmailers, but he is extricated by a clever lawyer and the curtains ring down as he fervently pleads with his congregation for support in cleaning up the "vice-ridden" town.

Edward Pawley, as Elmer Gantry, is excellently cast and another fine bit is provided by Gwendolyn Hathaway in the role of Lulu Bains. The play is not a good one, but the sort of publicity which will inevitably come its way probably will be a great help to the box office.

Though still in an off season, Broadway has several openings scheduled for the week which will provide some entertainment until the avalanche of hits and flops descends. Among the new offerings are "The Song Writer," starring George Price, and the long-awaited Jed Harris production, "The Front Page," a newspaper play written by Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur.

This being the time of year when producers are busy telling the world about their plans for the coming season, it is fitting that the intrepid Eva Le Gallienne should announce her schedule. Her season at the Civic Repertory Theater, in Fourteenth Street, opens October 1 with Anstey's adaptation of Moliere's "Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme," under the English title of "The Would-be Gentleman."

Her second production will be "L'Invitation a Voyage," the English translation by Ernest Boyd from the French of Jean-Jacques Bernard. Alla Nazimova will be cast in the leading role of Le Gallienne's third production, the Constance Garnett translation of Anton Tchekoff's "The Cherry Orchard," and Harris has released "Peter Pan" for the Repertory's third season.

Other new plays appearing in the schedule are "Katerina" in Herman Bernstein's translation from Andrei's "Yekaterina Ivanovna," in which Nazimova will also play the title role and a new comedy from the Spanish, still in negotiation, in which Mary Morris will play the lead.

Plays from previous seasons which will be repeated include Sierra's "Cradle Song," Isen's "Hedda Gabler" and "The Master Builder," "The Good Hope" by Heljermans, "Inheritance" by Susan Glaspell and Tchekoff's "Three Sisters."

EXPECT OVER 1,000 AT ANNUAL REUNION

Marion County To Be Represented at Roush Family Gathering in Adams County

More than 1,000 persons, including a large representation from Marion county and vicinity, are expected to attend the annual reunion of the Roush family and allied groups, to be held at West Union, Adams county, next Saturday, Aug. 25. N. E. Arnold, of Marion, is general chairman of arrangements for the reunion, which ranks as one of the largest family gatherings to be held in Ohio this year.

Last year the reunion was held at New Haven, W. Va., with approximately 1,100 in attendance. Relatives assembling for the annual gathering come from all parts of the country.

Notices of this year's meeting are being mailed out from Mr. Arnold's office here. Mr. Arnold, the only Marion resident listed among the speakers for the day, will preside during the program, to be given at the Adams county fairground. Included in the program will be the address of welcome by Robert S. Roush, West Union attorney, response by W. H. Roush, Graham Station, W. Va., and addresses by Edgar Ervin, of Columbus, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor in the recent primary, W. P. Stephenson, common pleas judge of Adams county, and J. Emery Carleton, of Pomeroy, former probate judge of Meigs county and now editor and publisher of the Pomeroy Democrat. Mr. Carleton's subject will be "Greetings from the Carletons to the Roushs."

A group picture of the gathering will be taken by a photographer from Point Pleasant, W. Va., who, with his assistants and equipment, will make the trip to West Union in an airplane. The executive committee of the reunion organization will meet in West Union Friday morning to complete arrangements for the annual gathering.

Intelligent Eating

In a year the average man works four months, sleeps four months.

Washes and dresses one month, commutes one month, plays one month.

And spends one month at the table providing his body with nourishment.

Eat intelligently and that one month at the table will fill the other eleven with enjoyment.

The Web of Death

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. J. J. HOUTGATING, Pastor, St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church

THIS morning as I sat in my study I noticed a bug crawling on the window curtain. I moved the curtain and it fell, apparently disappearing. But, on closer inspection I discovered that he had fallen into a spider's web. As he struggled to release himself I saw that a small spider was walking down the web to welcome him unwillingly. I at once anticipated an interesting combat. I waited. The spider sought to secure a hold upon his victim but was vigorously repulsed by the bug. After several unsuccessful attacks the spider went to a far corner of the web and waited. The unfortunate bug struggled violently for some minutes. At intervals the spider renewed the attack but always unsuccessfully. Finally after much struggling the bug succeeded in tearing out a whole section of the web. Immediately the spider began spinning strands from the window ledge and attached each one to the body of his intended victim, imprisoning him more securely. The bug was a pitiful sight with his legs hopelessly entangled and bound over and over again.

As I noticed this fascinating struggle I thought, "This unfortunate bug is but a picture of a countless number of men, women and young folks who are hopelessly entangled in the web of sin. As they struggle to free themselves they only succeed in binding tighter about them the strands of that web." Men do not deliberately imprison themselves in the web of sin; they foolishly believe that they will be able to release themselves whenever they choose. They forget that the power into whose hands they have fallen has captured many a victim stronger than they. They forget that if they succeed in making a partial escape he stands ever ready to spin about them other strands so fascinating and so tenacious that they must despair of escaping ever. "The Wages of Sin is Death."

Through the darkness there is a Ray of Light which falls upon this scene of tragedy. It is a Voice from Heaven: "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish but have everlasting life." "To him that overcometh, I will give a Crown of Life."

Yes, "The wages of Sin is Death, BUT the gift of God is life eternal."

RITZY FOLKS FLEEING DRY AGENTS' ATTACK

Process Servers Report Many Absent from New York on "Vacations"

The process servers and employees in the clubs were indicted. What can be done to those who were in the dry palace? Not much—merely a two-year jail sentence.

It was that steamship lines reported a rush of orders for reservations. Rich and socially prominent night club habitués professed a desire to go to Europe, Australia, Asia, New Zealand or any far climate, any distant port in a day's steaming. It was learned that federal men are going to serve papers on 500 more men and women.

Officers Start New Plan
Simultaneously with this new departure in the prohibition campaign against Broadway came an innovation in customs service procedure. When the French liner Ile De France—most popular queen of the seas—sailed, guards stood at the exit gates of the port, checking the pockets of the 4,000 male who bade bon voyage to departing friends.

Not a single bottle was said to have been discovered. Never before have customs men subjected ship's visitors to search. In answer to protests, the uniformed corps said: "Orders from Washington."

Process servers, dismayed by the impudent exodus of their prey, admitted that many they sought have been reported absent on vacations at summer resorts out of the country. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, generally was credited with inventing this new gadget to the merry-making hosts of the supper clubs.

A gala of 35 votes for George C. Braden, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor (full term) in the official count of Republican votes here gave Braden a lead in the city of 43 votes over John T. Brown. The gain, however, was not sufficient to offset Brown's plurality in the county precincts.

Clerks at Marion county election board headquarters have completed the official count of Republican votes cast in city precincts for state offices.

With the exception of Braden's gain of 35 votes, few errors were found in the unofficial count made immediately following the primary Tuesday. No errors were of any consequence.

The official vote of the city for Republican candidates for state offices follows:

Governor: James T. Begg, 2,120; Myers T. Cooper, 1,588; Fred Kohler, 50; Harry A. Shanley, 83; Harry C. Smith, 113; Edward C. Turner, 790.

Lieutenant governor (full term): George C. Braden, 906; John T. Brown, 863; Albert E. Culbert, 125; Roland

Daily Proverb—"That which makes wise men modest makes fools unmanly."

An eastern paragrapher complains that distribution is decidedly defective. He should try another bootlegger.

We'll say this for the five members of the local household who slept while robbers ransacked their home; they have nothing on their consciences.

It is estimated that the cost of the Byrd Antarctic expedition will exceed $1,000,000. It seems to us that snow and ice could be located with much less risk at a considerable saving of money.

Dean Charles R. Brown says that "we must remember that the symbol of Christianity is not the feather bed, nor is it the Morris chair." Good gracious, don't! Don't you know that both the feather bed and the Morris chair are as obsolete as the hoop skirt and pantaloons?

Up to Friday noon, the list of stop-street violators had grown to 800. As the days pass, the disregard which has been manifested toward the traffic ordinances in the past becomes more and more impressive.

"Raskob Calls on Hoover To Clean Up Liquor Stand," reads a headline. Poor stuff, Mr. Raskob! That's what we might anticipate from a ward politician manager of a candidate for some petty office.

Dr. Roy Chapman Andrews reports having found at the edge of the Gobi desert the fossilized remains of an animal which must have been as big as a New York City skyscraper were it laid on one of its sides, the head bones alone weighing 400 pounds. Maybe the doctor's report was dated April 1 and got delayed in transmission.

Paris shopkeepers report that purchasing by foreign visitors was very light this year. Presumably with the passing of another season or two the Paris shopkeepers may no longer regard price-raising as the great indoor sport.

Hoosier fishing in the White river claim to have been attacked by a sturgeon ten feet long and as big around as a horse, while berry-pickers in the vicinity of Bedford, in the same state, tell of having been chased by a blacksnake thirty feet long. It is evident that prohibition's foothold in that state is mighty precarious.

Standardization of Traffic Laws.

There are indications that the standardization of traffic codes for states and municipalities is not far away. One by one, the states have been dropping into line and adopting the code prepared by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, and now the campaign is to be directed to municipalities. Washington advises as to the effect that 10,000 copies of the model code, adopted by the conference are to be sent out to individuals in as many municipalities, the coming week, with requests that they be urged upon city and village authorities for adoption.

Recommending that, where signal lights are used at street intersections, they be of three colors—red, yellow and green—maximum speeds are placed at thirty-five miles an hour on country highways save where conditions justify some leeway with careful driving; twenty miles an hour in residence districts and the same speed in business districts where others direct traffic or there are stop-and-go signals, and fifteen miles an hour in business districts not so guarded by officers or lights, around curves, over all grades or passing school buildings at recess time or time of dismissal, all speed limits to be fixed by the state and not by municipalities.

Motor traffic rules are to govern persons on the streets with pushcarts, leading animals or riding bicycles and roller skating, save across street intersections, is prohibited. In the country districts, the vehicle on the right has preference and in the city, the vehicle first reaching an intersection other than that of an ordinary street and a thoroughfare. Save at intersections guarded by officers or signals, pedestrians are given the right-of-way over vehicles. Brakes are to be set and engines dead when cars are left. Night parking on the street is barred, and standing in the roadway to solicit rides and clinging to a motor vehicle or street car when riding a motorcycle, bicycle or sled or wearing skates is made unlawful.

At present, lack of uniformity in traffic laws and signals causes the motorist or driver of other vehicle to offend in many cases when he does so in his desire or intention. With uniform laws and signals possibility of offending through ignorance of traffic ordinances would be practically negligible. Practice may show that the recommended code does not meet all requirements, in which case it may be made to conform to what is deemed most satisfactory to the public generally, but there can be no question but what a standardization of traffic regulations throughout the country will add something to the pleasure and safety of driving.

A Billion for Reclamation.

Addressing a vast gathering in Los Angeles, Friday, Herbert Hoover, the Republican presidential nominee, appealed for congressional action looking to the early construction of Boulder dam, the flood control, power development, water supply and reclamation project which has received the approval of President Coolidge, Dr. Hubert Work, at the time he was secretary of the interior, and many other men prominent in public and private life who have investigated the proposal.

In acting on the Boulder dam project congress should not permit itself to be influenced by any other measure or measures along a similar line, nor should it permit whatever action it may take on the proposal to be used to influence it in acting on any other proposal for the use of public funds.

A few days ago announcement was made in Washington that congress, the coming winter, will be asked to authorize no less than five big reclamation projects in addition to the combination project proposed on the Colorado river, and it was estimated that the total cost of the six projects, added to the $230,000,000 expended on such enterprises during the last twenty-five years, will closely approximate $1,000,000,000.

The six projects are the Columbia river basin in Washington, the cost of which is estimated at $300,000,000; the Umatilla rapids and Deschutes river project in Oregon, and the Casper-Alcove and Saratoga projects in Wyoming. The cost of the Umatilla project is placed at $60,000,000 and the other Oregon and the two Wyoming at lesser amounts.

While it is not expected that action will be taken by congress, this winter, on any but the Boulder dam enterprise, there is always the possibility that the other five may be brought up and pushed through, as the house committee on irrigation has taken favorable action on all the five measures and the senate irrigation committee on the majority of the projects.

Without taking into consideration the log-rolling which goes on in all our legislative bodies, the strength of the lobbies behind these reclamation projects, the politics which figures in them, it is hard to understand how the committees took the action they did in the face of the fact that the agricultural acreage we already have is far in excess of the demand therefor, and the further fact that we have already expended many millions on which we have had no return and that there is no demand for much of the land which has been thus reclaimed.

A few days ago a statement was sent out from Washington that the government already has been compelled to write off losses on nineteen reclamation projects, on which there have been definite losses amounting to over $14,600,000 and probable losses amounting to over $12,700,000 more, a total of over $27,000,000. If such is the loss on the reclamation projects we already have, which, all told, cost $70,000,000 less than the estimated cost of the Columbia basin project alone, what will be the loss sustained should the entire reclamation program go through and over $500,000,000 be added to the expenditure wholly for reclamation?

Development of the country is one thing, but development of the country at the expense of the many for the benefit of the few is quite another, and the majority of these reclamation projects may be listed as proposed developments at public cost for the benefit of the comparatively few.

Thus classifying the Columbia basin project to one of its ardent champions recently brought the response:

"Well, all parts of the country are getting theirs. California is going to get hers, and we people of the Northwest want our share, and we're going to do our best to get it!"

And in this response we have the last word in explanation of many attempted raids on the public treasury, and we have also an illustration of the danger which lies in permitting them to be accomplished.

Two German sailors attempting to cross the Atlantic in a "bicycle" boat left Cuxhaven, Germany, this week for Plymouth, England. Only a few days, now, and some vessel will have a job on its hands fishing them out of the ocean.

The casualties of the eruption of Mount Katatinda, on the island of Palowek, are finally put at 1,200 dead and 400 injured, 1,000 having been killed by being buried, burned or struck by the lava. Sometimes we feel that we Ohioans do not adequately appreciate how exceedingly fortunate we are in living where we do.

Fishing out in Colorado, Vice President Dawes says he has set a moral limit of twelve fish ten inches long or over for a day's catch. It might work a considerable saving of morals to fishermen in those parts were they able to make a catch like that in a year.

It was the perversity of fate that a two-month-old letter from Captain Dyott should have been received the day after the newspapers of the land ran columns of space telling of the fears entertained that he had suffered mishap. The captain, who is seeking to secure some trace of the missing Colonel Fawcett in the wilds of Brazil, explains in his letter that his radio has gone wrong.

It is charged, and not contradicted, that the speakeasies of New York City are paying out $10,000,000 annually for police protection. Those New Yorkers manifestly realize that visitors from the hinterland must have liquid refreshment while visiting the metropolis and seeing the sights.

Captain Malcolm Campbell, who holds the world's speed record for automobiles, prophesies that those driving 200 miles an hour will in the near future be using an auxiliary motor to aid them in steering. If motorists are to employ more mechanical assistance in getting us, we true aristocrats of the land may just as well throw up the sponge.

Some New Light on Asthma.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Asthma is a strange disease. It is a freakish in its effects and is difficult to handle that hundreds of "asthma cures" have been placed on the market. This is not surprising, for the medical profession was baffled for years. In the meantime, the poor sufferers continued to endure the agonies of the disease.

During the past few years we have learned that some persons have a remarkable sensitivity to certain substances. It is now believed that many cases of asthma are produced by the inhalation of one of many such substances.

The medical profession has come to understand that every asthma patient must be studied as an individual. What will help one is useless for another.

In studying the means of relief the first thing is to find the exciting cause. What do you suppose are some of the irritating substances?

Well, rabbit's hair is one. Immediately you will say: "How could the world could I come in contact with rabbit hair? I haven't seen a rabbit for forty years!"

The hair of Australian rabbits is a common filling for pillows. Likewise, rabbit fur is dyed and used in making neckties.

It is not uncommon to find a person who is never free from asthma in one house and never has it when he visits the home of a relative. This might be accounted for by the presence and use of rabbit hair pillows in the one house and feather pillows in the other.

I read of one victim who was found to be sensitive to the dust of her own home. There was something in it which appeared to excite the attacks of asthma. This might be because of the furniture with the dust of particles of wool or other substance from one particular rug.

But there are other ways of getting the irritating material into the system besides breathing it. Certain protein foods are poisonous to the susceptible. By careful testing the offending food substance is found. Relief follows the elimination from the diet.

Hay-fever is like asthma, but it appears to be caused by the pollen of certain plants and grasses, clover, rye, timothy hay, rag weed and other plants are carriers of the pollen which brings on the attacks.

Fortunately only a small percentage of persons are subject to asthma and hay fever. Every victim must be studied carefully to find the particular cause responsible for his agony.

Where Egyptian Women Shine.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

There is at least one way in which the Egyptian woman, unmanipulated as she is, has an advantage that the American woman, emancipated though she may be has not. She may not be permitted to be unveiled in public, she must ride in shuttered palanquins, she must even consent to polygamous marriages. But she has one right of her own, and that is her property right. Under Mohammedan laws, a woman may do exactly as she wishes with her own property. Furthermore, and here is her advantage over her American sister, she may defend her rights herself in court, should she so desire.

For centuries these women have had this right, and they know how to protect themselves. This dignity is the basis for their whole life.

It is so uncommon sight, in Egypt, to see a case in court tried by a woman. Of course, unless one is admitted to the bar, this could not occur in America. Indeed, a man may often choose his sister to represent him in a matter that involves property rights.

And it would surprise you to see how these women, accustomed as they are to the background, blossom out, as it were, on achieving, for the moment, the sunlight. They speak freely and fluently, they use their hands freely. They are convincing orators. And they generally come out victorious from these legal encounters.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Opinion.

IMPAIRING FEDERAL JUSTICE.

Senator Caraway is spending proudly of his bill which passed the senate last March to take from federal judges the right to comment pertinently on evidence and witnesses in cases tried by jury. He expects enactment of this measure at the short session, but there should be enough members of the house who are interested in keeping federal justice firm to block the attempt to make it spineless.

The Caraway bill provides that it shall be "irrevocable error" for the presiding judge to express his personal opinion as to the credibility of witnesses or the weight of testimony. Thus it reduces the judge to the position of an umpire merely, depriving him of a power exercised at common law and retained in the federal courts to their advantage as tribunals seeking to elicit the truth. In New York and in other states, unfortunately, the judge's right to comment has been permitted to lapse. The Baumes commission has sought to restore in this state the assertive conduct of trials, which would do much, it is believed, to clear out the underbrush of technicalities that impedes justice.

It was an aberration for the senate by its vote for hamstringing federal judges to antagonize the nationwide movement to brace up criminal procedure. Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, stated the fact plainly: "This seems to me to be a step backward. The tendency of it will be to bring down the standard of judicial practice in the United States." The Caraway measure would directly against the recommendations of the National Crime Commission. It is precisely the enervation which Chief Justice Taft has instilled and deplored in his comparison of the judge-automaton to the moderator of a church meeting. There surely can be no popular mandate for congress to demoralize judicial process, none too vigorous at the best.—New York Herald Tribune.

TOO DIFFICULT TO MEET.

The latest proposal of the Shipping board to sell the United States lines and the American Merchant Lines can hardly be regarded as more than a gesture. The plans of sale under which these ship investments are presently to be advertised are so rigid that buyers will hardly be found.

The stipulations of sale have to do primarily with terms of operation of these lines after their ownership has passed into private hands. Conceived for the purpose of keeping the American flag on the high seas and assuring proper shipping services between the country and leading foreign ports, they would hem the new owners in such a way as to make ownership highly unattractive.

Every new development in connection with merchant shipping in this country makes it more apparent that the government of the United States is in the shipping business to stay, unless a wholly new policy is prescribed by congress. There was a time early in the Harding administration when the chance of selling the war acquired fleet was fairly bright. But as time went on that chance has become slimmer and slimmer. Working in that direction on the one hand has been the active campaign in favor of a greater American merchant marine; on the other the disposition of the Shipping board to do nothing likely to dry up its own job.

One has only to read the specifications under which the government ships are now offered for sale to be convinced that they will not be met. If ocean shipping were a highly profitable business at the present time bidders might be found even in the face of these rigid specifications, but with the business of shipping still depressed, such an outcome is wholly improbable.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

This day was Tuesday, James H. Doty, sixty-three, an Erie engineer who had been an employee of the Chicago and Atlantic from the time of its construction and continued with it after it became an Erie line on up to the time of the illness which resulted in his death, died at his home on West Center street.

One hundred citizens of Springfield, Illinois, were under arrest, charged with rioting. These were born to Mr. Jordan Clark, of Toledo avenue, and to Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Mages, of east Center street.

John Bunyan.

BY GARRETT F. SERVISS.

What is the true criterion of literature—technique or thought? The technician would point out of the inner circle John Bunyan, whose 300th anniversary is to be celebrated this year, because of the homely, unaffected, "literary" style in which he wrote. But they can not obscure the fact that his "Pilgrim's Progress" is one of the world's greatest books. The phds of literature pass, making hardly a ripple, but Bunyan, the unlettered thinker with the divine gift of sympathetic expression, is a towering rock in the stream of human thought.

There are three supreme books—not mentioning the Bible—that have been the great stimulant for youthful minds. These are: (1) "Robinson Crusoe," and its enchanting consort, "Swiss Family Robinson"; (2) the "Arabian Nights"; and (3) the "Pilgrim's Progress."

The first two, linked together, make but one appeal, viz, to the spirit of adventure, luring the reader into the wonders of the world of nature among strange countries, oceans and islands lost in space.

The second appeals to the mysterious sense of unused power that lurks in the back of the mind of every human being, leading to the inactive, half-belief of which everybody is at times conscious, that if he could only catch the knack he could be a magician too. See on that point Wells's story of "The Man Who Could Do Miracles."

The third of the great books, the "Pilgrim's Progress," has an entirely different appeal, no less powerful and perhaps more lasting than the others. It is a lure to the religious sentiments, which despite what self-deluded atheists may say, are implanted in all normal human beings. In writing that wonderful story John Bunyan proved himself to be the "Pied Piper" of Christianity. He blows the bewitching pipes of his fascinating allegory, and the youngest reader follows him, even over the rough stones of theological communings, with never-ending eagerness and interest. It is a story to draw children from their plays and their toys—I remember how it drew me to my mother's knee when she read it aloud, and even the footnotes, which she also read, did not obscure the picture in my mind of "Christian" struggling up the hill of the "straight and narrow way" with that terrible burden on his back, or weaken his satisfaction when, at last the burden dropped off, and rolled and rolled, down and down, until it disappeared in a south of the pit. The "Pilgrim's Progress" is the greatest of all allegories. It has had more influence than all the pulpits sermons.

Recall for a moment some of its marvelous scenes: "Christian's" battle with "Apollyon"; the traverse of the "Valley of the Shadow of Death"; the "House Beautiful"; and its lovely and pious hostesses; "Vanity Fair," with its shows, its lures, its enticements, its brilliance and its wickedness; the perils of the "Flood of Grounds"; the "Land of the Living"; the "Triumphal Crossing of the Dark River," the approach to the city with the gates of pearl and the glimpses of ineffable glory as the Pilgrim passes in. And then, in the second part, the adventures of the Pilgrim's wife and children following his footsteps, visiting the scenes of his trials, battles and escapes, and converting sweetly with those who had known him on his way; the incomparable scene, "Grievous Heart"; the "Giant Despair," and many other most memorable things that crowd the pages of this extraordinary book.

No man ever deserved better than John Bunyan to have his memory enshrined with fresh laurels on the 300th anniversary of his birth. He was a better tale-teller than any of the " Canterbury Pilgrims."—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, Aug. 18.—People transplanted from New York from smaller cities here have many before they acquire the real "New York" city—their own home and a vital experience of those who were born and reared here. The comparative stranger knows of the bustling life he sees about him.

He goes from his boarding-house to work and back again, meeting only those who are like himself—strangers. During of hours he visits the movies, the theaters and now and then those cafes reputed gay and patronized chiefly by visitors.

He has been accustomed to the back-fence neighborliness of his home town and is so without it. The born New Yorker knows nothing of this. As a consequence he acquires self-reliance. What is often mistaken for brassiness is merely his natural way of enlarging his acquaintance.

Young folk especially do not stand up ceremony. A New York youth will take an excursion boat to Coney island, and before in a half-way there, will have made the acquaintance of a girl. They may never meet again, but before they separate they are calling each other by first names.

This association is not the "pick up" a venture of the streets of a smaller city. Formality of the conventional introduction is usually impossible, and so they become acquainted as casually and naturally as a passenger takes a street car.

When a family moves in New York, even only a few blocks away, it is the same as moving to a different city. It may be years before they see their neighbors again, and so they have by experience become adept in fitting with new surroundings.

The born New Yorker never suffers from loneliness. Nor is he ingratiating. Indifference freezes on his lips. But he has an uncanny quality of making himself at home. I do not suffer from self-consciousness. It is the stranger who struggles for years to realize that only one in a hundred and if he has friends he must step out and make them.

New York has its jealous side, but not so a parent as in a smaller city. A man on an upward climb here may receive a few well aimed bricks, but when he reaches the top he finds no excitement whatever over his ascent. Too many arrived ahead of him to make it a novelty.

And curiosity here is as pronounced as anywhere but takes an entirely different form. Skyscraper skyscrapers up to the clouds and a neck is craned, but let a pedestrian stop hunt a penny and he will block traffic. A m putting on an extra tire will immediately have a dozen bright helpers. Movie stars, theatrical first nights or a visiting duke will bring an army of goggle-eyed to gaze. Yet there is large proportion of native population that has never seen the Egyptian obelisk in Central park, the Colosseum in Rome or the Sphinx in Brooklyn. New York to them is just place where they live.

A bit of tense drama that would incite merry hoos on the stage was unfolded in relief recently in a bootlegging war. A bootlegger was called to a telephone, a female voice said: "You have five minutes to pray and the receiver clicked. He stood musing for a few minutes. Suddenly there was a pistol and he fell with seven bullets in his back.

Alcohol-soaked movies are pleasant havens during torrid days, but unless you care—and would?—to come out dripping with icicles you can not sit through an entire performance. Back of me sat a man who had turned up his coat collar and his teeth were beginning chatter. "If it drops two more points," he whispered to his companion, "I'm going home."—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

County Organizations Launch Fall Campaign Plans

COMMITTEES READY FOR FIRST MEETINGS

Democratic Leaders of County Expected To Convene Next Week

NO C. O. P. DATE SET
Election of Chairman To Be One of First Steps Taken in Preparing for Battle

Political pots in Marion county will begin to simmer again next week. A temporary lull following the party primaries last Tuesday has allowed the temperature of the political pot to cool considerably, but next week the fires are expected to be re-kindled.

With the proposed meetings of Republican and Democratic county committees within the next few days the active campaign for the general election on Nov. 6 will be started. Better S. Young, chairman of the Democratic committee, said today that he planned to call a meeting of the committee next week. The meeting will probably be held next Wednesday, according to Young.

Republicans Plan
Bet J. Shelton, Republican chairman, has set no date for the first meeting of committee. The meeting will be held soon however, Shelton said today.

The first act of both committees will be the selection of chairmen. Shelton is chairman of the Republican committee for the last four years. Young has served as Democratic chairman for two years.

Whether party headquarters will be established here by the committees will depend on action taken at the first meeting, the chairmen said today.

If the vote at the primaries last Tuesday is any indication, the turnout at the general election in November will be among the largest ever witnessed here. A new record was set for primary elections in the county when more than 9,000 persons went to the polls last Tuesday. This figure is more than twice the number of voters at the primaries in 1926, election board records show.

Count In Long Job
The unofficial count at election board headquarters was not completed until 5:30 o'clock Wednesday morning, 24 hours after the polls closed the night before.

While the vote at the November election will probably be heavier than at the primaries, the job of tabulation will not be as difficult due to the fact that the number of candidates will be greatly reduced.

At the primaries there were 65 candidates including both parties, for 12 county offices. With the exception of the office of county commissioner, in that term, there will be only two candidates for each office at the election in November.

TRAFFIC VIOLATIONS SHOWING DECREASE

Only Seven Motorists Listed Yesterday in Stop Street Campaign

That Marion motorists are beginning to realize the earnestness of local police in stamping out violations of the stop street ordinance at the various intersections of the city, is evidenced in the fact that only seven license numbers were collected by police yesterday.

The seven numbers were taken at Bellefontaine and Pearl sts. and Pearl and Columbia sts.

No let-up has been noted in the campaign of the local police department in enforcing the ordinance since it was launched nearly two weeks ago. Seventy-five licenses registered Thursday brought the total number of violators to 800, according to police records. Police plan to continue the campaign against motorists not observing the ordinance.

The second special session of the traffic court will be held next Wednesday morning, according to an announcement of John H. Powell, clerk of municipal court, today. Notices for the violators to appear at the court will be sent out Monday. Approximately 250 will be summoned to appear and a group of 50 will face Judge W. H. Martin every half hour, according to plans of Clerk Powell.

About 225 were fined at the first traffic court held last Wednesday. Several of the cases continued at the hearings Wednesday will be heard next Monday.

VACATIONS

THE lounge for two weeks have joined the ranks of those who date affairs as occurring B. V. And did you ever notice how lengthy the week, its days or two weeks seemed when the owner vacation started out and how short your own vacation seemed? You just fairly get accustomed leisurely to disliking the dirt or discussing the latest scandal with the relatives or girl friend while breakfasting at a quarter to noon, and feeling that you're not skimping the butter on the bowl's bread when you fare forth for a drive right away after lunch, until the little old fellow reminds you that time has flitted. There are other gentle reminders too, such as beads to be repaired, frocks that look like they longed for the touch of the cleaner's hand, and the little old wallet that looks like a flock of elephants had held an indignant meeting on it. It isn't half bad to get back on the job and even the old alarm clock that comes in for a perked up after its vacation and one can almost sniff a promise that some of these mornings it's going to forget to ring, giving you a perfectly legitimate excuse for being late.

DOG RACES

IF you want an evening of unusual excitement go to the dog races. If you're lucky you may go home with a few more skeels than you had when you started and if you're not, well just forget it. At least you'll have to admit you have some fun. There's this to it, it's all up to the canine; even if he were the fleetest of the fleet-footed, and did not choose to do his dearest in some particular race, well it's just to bad. It's some other dog's moment. The dog I saw seemed interested in the business at hand and I believe were inclined to want everybody to win a little and be happy.

Even a dog should know that you can't win every time, but I will say that a little encouragement once in a while would temper the agony much. Perhaps the ones I picked were old hands at the game and knew that it was the same kind of a bunny that lays Easter eggs and thought, "Oh, well what's the use. And speaking of the rabbit: one of our party, who like myself had never seen a dog race, inquired solicitously and with no small amount of pathos in her voice if "the same rabbit had to run in every race." I hesitate to repeat relating the story because the only other time I told it, one of the auditors remarked that she had not thought so much about that but did think the rabbit might run away.

BARE LEGS

DAME fashion has again taken a stand on the side of the p. w. g. who, if she lends a willing ear, may reduce the figures in the "clothes" column, and have three slices of toast where before she had only two. No longer need she dash home in order to wash out a pair of hose before heaping a heavy date for the movies, nor was uncomfortable as she feels that terrifying sensation of a runner slowly but surely making its way up or down one of her calves if she cares to adopt the newest mode. Bare legs, have as your birthday legs, in the fashion of the moment. Of course, if you care to you may don socks, but why bother. As long as this seems to be open season for voting why not vote for relegate the stockings to the attic along with the old corset, bustle and box of hair pins?

Many a woman's idea of a pretty hat is one that costs a lot of money, regardless of what it looks like.

The Constant Flame

A ROMANCE OF GRIPPING HUMAN INTEREST.

BY WINIFRED VAN DUSEN

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE
Life took on a luminous charm. Each day came softly, like a splendid new adventure, bearing magic gifts.

Emily moved in radiance, proud as a young queen, happier than ever she had been before.

She did much of the work now that Frances had cared for. When there was a job to be executed it was Emily who inspected and recommended. Of course, to her partner's approval. A big movie theater which came to Lyall and called in the firm was handled by Emily practically unassisted.

A great triumph this was for her and her share of the commission went a long way on the amount owing for the firm's interest.

Greenery out the River road grew dark and dusty and lawns were strewn with yellow leaves; the Hudson took on the look of running sapphire and the air held wistfulness, like a lingering caress, which is summer's farewell.

It was nearing election time and every day now the opposing newspapers waged bitter and wordy wars with each other over candidates for office. The item continued to back up Kent Rossiter and strangely enough as it seemed to Emily, the Star did not oppose him.

Marty, now established in Judge Norton's office, grinned when she mentioned this.

"What about it?"
"But I thought the judge owned the Star? You mean he wants Kent for the place? I sort of thought—you see, I imagined—well, I guess maybe the judge isn't unreasonable as some people say."

"Clearer, aren't you? But not so clever with your own affairs." He said it lightly but there was a curious expression in the tawny eyes.

"What affairs, Marty? I thought I was managing very well."
"I'll just say this: better keep an eye on that kid sister. She'll stand watching."

The quick fear Emily had known once before clutched her; she put a shaking hand on his arm. "What do you mean? Marty—"

"I mean that and nothing else but," she snapped. And walked out of the shop.

Emily kept an eye on the kid sister but saw nothing amiss. Kitten had grown quieter, perhaps, and rather more amiable but the air of secrecy she threw around herself was no greater than it always had been. She had learned to sew a little and she spent much time with her clothes, cleaning and pressing and making them over.

She had a natural knack for striking effects and by the mere placing of a buckle or the twisting of an end of velvet managed to give an exotic look to the simplest frocks.

Dottie still was held to the house; if she went out at all it always had to be with some member of the Brent family. Floesia Gaiuso had drifted to New York and into a heavy chorus.

So the trio of flappers was broken up, to Emily's relief. And Kitten didn't seem to care for rubbing down to the ice-cream shop now nor for going out in the afternoon.

Emily wondered about this. Thinking over what Marty had said she would plunge into a panic of worry and finally, snatching her hat, hurry up the hill and come bursting into the house.

But her sister nearly always was there, curled up in the porch swing with a book or studying fashion plates. Once at night when she was almost asleep she was seized with apprehension. Getting up quietly, she felt her way along the hall to Kitten's room. It appeared to be dark but Emily caught the sound of movement and pushed open the door.

All in black velvet Kitten stood before the mirror, preening herself like some gorgeous, tropical bird. The gown was a new one, fashioned in a slender, sooty sheath that revealed every graceful line of the small figure.

The red hair was brushed back and fluffed so it framed the beautiful face in a blaze of ringlets, a low hairnet than the brightly painted lips. Great jet loops hung at the little ears.

"Oh, for goodness' sake! Can't even try a dress on without your snooping. No crime to try a dress on is it?"

"But so late, dear," Emily saw then that the kerchief had been stopped and a blanket hung over the cracks of the door. "All you need is the rope ladder," she added, smiling. "Why all the secrecy?"

Kitten gave her a sharp glance and turned sullen. "Have to be secret around here where no one ever lets you alone." She began to remove the earrings, watching her sister in the glass. "Seen enough, Em? Or did you come for the night?"

So little and so lovely she looked and so at variance with all the world. Emily's eyes filled; she stood there vaguely, touching the dusky velvet.

"Can't we be friends, Kitten-cat? I don't want to hurt you. If only you'd love me a little!"

The younger girl hung her head—flung herself into her sister's arms, sobbing.

"I do love you, Emmy. Oh, I do! But things are so—so kind of awful. Living up here on the Hill—well, we don't stand much show, do we? That isn't fair, always to be out of things because we're poor."

"You've got Frances, but that does not help me. I want good times too. And you always act as if I'm a—criminal—"

A specially big sob with this. Emily put her hands against the ringlets, angling the bright head as she had done when they were children. "Dear little Kitten-kid, I hadn't any idea—but of course I used to feel that way. Harder for you; I always could pretend. I'll take you with me after this and you'll love Frances and her friends. And it doesn't make any difference really, whether we live on the Hill. It's what we are that counts. You'll see."

Later she wondered if she really believed this. Kitten often went out with her after this. She never was the sensation in the salon at Great View that Emily had been. The younger girl, after all, was true to type—the new generation type. And she had no wish to pose as a good listener.

Kingdon Cole seemed to admire her at first but he soon wearied of her arrogance. And of course Frances' friends seemed odd to her and woefully unexciting.

It wasn't long before she began to refuse Emily's invitations, pleading this excuse or that for remaining away. And soon the window and the kitchen roof and the grape trellis came back into her life.

Nicky would park his car on the dark corner a block up the street and wait till she could get out. Sometimes it was nearly midnight, but he always waited.

Once, after a long run down through Jersey, they rolled into Lyall early in the morning, boldly going through the River road which should have been deserted.

But there had been a hail at the yacht club and guests were leaving; Nicky had to pick his way through traffic. He was held for a long moment directly under a light.

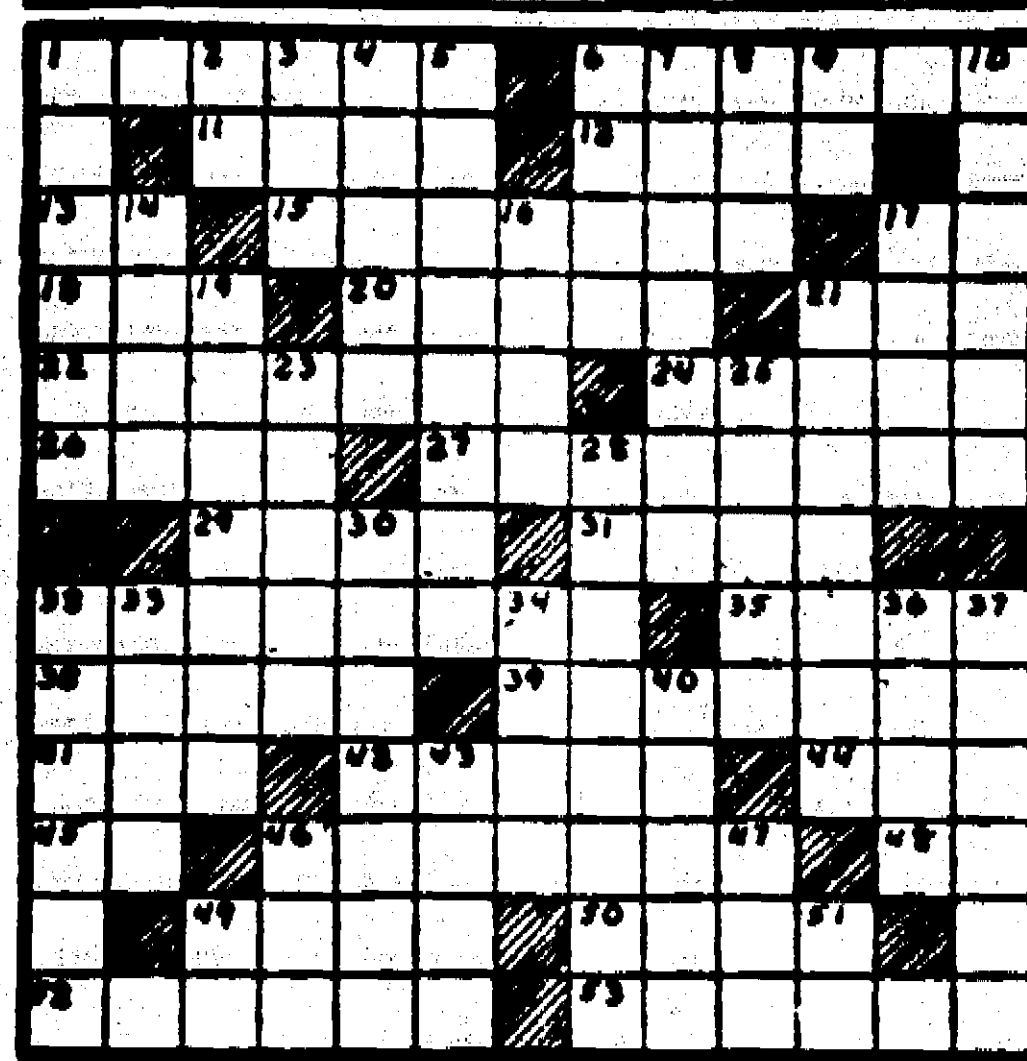

In her place beside him Kitten saw a woman staring from another car. Black eyes oddly alight, little white teeth jammed into a red lip.

"Look, Nicky. Who's that watching?"
He glanced up and whispered. "Damn!"

Kitten went cold. The woman, she knew, was Nicky's wife.
